Learn About Foster Parents At Saturday's Meeting

This Saturday, February 20, a meeting will be held at 1017 Harcourt Avenue, Seaside, from 1 until 4 p.m. for anyone interested in finding out some facts about the local foster parent program.

This is the second gathering, which will have refreshments to be held in the area. A third tea will be held Saturday, February 27, at 257 Clay Street in Salinas. This alos will be from 1 until 4 p.m.

The purpose of these teas, which are being held in foster homes, is to inform the public of what being a foster parent entails and of the tremendous need on the Peninsula for more foster homes.

The following, written by Mrs. Irene Preston of Prunedale, who is president of Monterey County Foster Parents Association, gives some insight into this wonderful venture.

"A foster parent is a person who can give of himself to others;

"One who is unselfish; "One who cares; "One who will forget personal feelings; "One who can share; "One who spend himself; "One who will sacrifice; "One who may have his heart broken; "Being a foster parent is not always glamorous. We may feel the child should appreciate us but he doesn't always. Sometimes he resents us for taking his parent's place. Some say they don't care. Sometimes we feel we have failed to help them. Someone else may do better. If we do our best and let them know we love and care for them, it will be worth it all when one says 'I love you' or I do appreciate what you have done for me. Or maybe one will say 'I will always remember you I am going home to my parents...' Or we see him make a success of his life when at times we wondered. Being a foster parent is a challenge and a joy."

Wood Wants To Dispose of Pesticides

Assemblyman Bob Wood announced that he is introducing legislation to facilitate the disposition of unwanted pesticides and used pesticide containers.

This has become an increasing problem for state officials in not only trying to protect the environment, but also in protecting the public from the hazards involved with harmful materials.

Wood said, "The disposal and use of pesticides has serious consequences to our health and our environment. This bill will strengthen the authority of the Department of Agriculture in controlling them.

Wood, as a member of the Assembly Agriculture Committee, will be deeply involved in trying to resolve this problem.

The Pesticide Advisory Committee of the California Department of Agriculture has determined that pesticide containers accumulated in many areas are health hazards and that a one-time statewide cleanup is needed immediately. Wood has endorsed the decision of the Department to have a statewide drive for the first two weeks in March to dispose of used pesticide containers at appropriate dump facilities.

The Assemblyman also indicated that further recommendations are prepared.

CUBS CAN-DO - Seaside Cub Scouts delivered 96 pounds of aluminum cans to Sparolina Bottling Company on Del Monte Boulevard. Kaiser Expands Can-Do all-aluminum can recycling program to Monterey County was announced recently by Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Corporation.

Collection centers have been established in Seaside and Salinas to which individuals can bring their flattened all-aluminum cans and received 10 cents a pound.

The Seaside center is the Sparolini Distibuting Co., 1845 Del Monte Boulevard, open Tuesday 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., while the Salinas collection center is Rossi Distributor, Inc., 1044 Harkins Road, open Friday from 10 A.M. to Noon.

The Can.DO program has been operating on a pilot basis in the San Francisco Bay Area and is now being expanded to an additional 26 cities in northern and central California, ranging from Bakersfield in the south to Crescent City on the Oregon border, the company said.

Working in conjuction with Coors Brewing Company and Anheuser-Bush distributors, collection depots have been established in each of the cities. The collected cans are then transported to Kaiser Aluminum's Union City plant near Oakland for sorting and baling and shipped to the Pacific Northwest for remelting and recasting into new aluminum products.

"The expanded Can.DO program completes recycling coverage of California," M.D. Eisele of Kaiser Aluminum said. "Similar, but independent programs currently are being sponsored by other aluminum producers in San Diego County and in the greater Los Angeles area. These programs, when considered along with Can.DO, effectively provide collection for all areas of California where aluminum cans are used in appreciable numbers."

California cities to which Can.DO is being introduced are Auburn, Bakersfield, Chico, Crescent City, Eureka, Fresno, Hollister, Lodi, Merced, Modesto, Redding, Sacramento, Salinas, San Rafael, Santa Cruz, Santa Rosa, Seaside, Stockton, Ukiah, Vallejo, Visalia, Watsonville, Weed, Willows, Woodland and Yuba City.

The recycling program has met with marked success during the nine months it has been in operation in the San Francisco Bay Area. During that period, more than 14-millon all-aluminum cans have been collected and individuals and groups have been paid $70,000 for their efforts.

"Programs such as Can.DO provides some partial answers for major problems facing us in California," Mr. Eisele said. "They help control litter, as well as lessening amounts of solid waste. By recycling alumium, we help conserve natural resources, and such programs also afford area civic and charitable organizations with an excellent way to raise needed funds."

School Food Program Gets Big Boost

California will receive a 73 percent increase-- to $36,296,701 -- in federal money for feeding children in the year ending June 30, 1971.

According to the United States Department of Agriculture's regional Food and Nutrition Service office in San Francisco, the money will:

* Pay part of the cost of meals served in all California schools participating in the National School Lunch program ($8,442,385 -- up more than 33 percent from last year). More than 150.5 million such meals were served in the state last year.

* Help provide free or reduced-price lunches for poor children $($9,986,971 -- more than eight times as much as last year);

* Help provide breakfasts for children in low-income area schools ($402, 190 -- a 23 percent increase);

* Help local schools buy kitchen equipment ($1,039,297 -- well over two and one-half times as much as last year);

* Help provide meals and snacks for children in non-profit day care centers or recreation programs ($470,660 -- more than 38 percent above last year);

* Provide a supplemental fund to be used as needed for free and reduced-price lunches, breakfasts and kitchen equipment ($7,543,529 -- a 90 percent increase over last year.

California also will receive $8,411,669 to help buy milk for schools and child care centers.

The federal money is apprortioned to local schools through the California Department of Education.

VA Changes Interest Rate On Insurance

Interest rate changes on two GI insurance programs were announced recently by the Veterans Administration, according to Joseph E. Mullen, Acting Director of VA's Northern California Regional Office.

Effective January 11, the interest rate paid by veterans on money borrowed on their government life insurance policies was changed to five percent. The old rate of four percent-- in effect more than 24 years -- will continue to apply to all loans made before January 11.

The interest VA pays on insurance dividends left to accumulate by veterans holding World War II type National Service Life Insurance policies (with a "V" prefix) was increased from four to 4.5 percent effective January 1, 1971.

Dividends left with VA for these NSLI policies totaled about $283,000,000 at the end of 1970, exceeding by $10,000,000 the amount left with VA at the end of 1969.

The higher interest rate paid by VA results from greater interest earnings in the NSLI trust fund.

About 105,000 policy loans amounting to nearly $126,000,000 were made to veterans in 1970.

Program Expanded

The weekly police/student dialogues at Monterey Peninsula College have been expanded to include small from the community, according to MPC humanities instructor Leonard Epstein, who leads the sessions Tuesdays at noon in Room H-1 on campus.

"We welcome anyone willing to meet as people and talk "Epstein said. "Judges, lawyers, businessmen, housewives anyone. We all need to communicate with each other."

Local Group Negotiating For More Minority Help

Approximately $3 million in new construction could be started in Monterey and Santa Cruz County if a new plan now under negotiation is put into effect this year. Under Executive Order 11246, signed into law on September 24, 1965 by President Lyndon Johnson, steps must be taken to assure equal employment in federally-assisted, partially or entirely financed programs. This was further extended by Executive order 11375 to prohibit discrimination on basis of Sex.

For the first time in history, a committee, called "Affirmative Action", is uniting the blacks and browns in Monterey and Santa Cruz Counties to negotiate a contract under executive order 11246.

The Committee, headed by Jane Van Hook of Seaside and Miguel Rodriguez of Salinas, is presently holding negotiations with a committee from the building trades, labor and management. Heading the Building Trades committee are Mr. Otjen of the Association of General Contractors and Mr. Russ Hansen of the Building Trades Union AFL-CIO.

An advisory group of seven members from the Mexican-American community is assisting Rodriguez. A group of five from the black community is assisting Miss Van Hook, Attorney for Legal Aid Society.

Sitting as chairmen for their respective counties are Supervisor Willard Branson for Monterey County and Supervisor Ted Colton for Santa Cruz county.

Also in attendance at the negotiations are Mr. Amador and Mr. Dacus from the Office of Federal Contract Compliance.

Under the law, employment of minorities must approximate the percentage number of minority people living in the respective counties.

In Monterey County that is 28 percent. It has been established that less than 28 percent of those minorities are now working in the construction industry. The new contract will provide among many other items, a system for upgrading minority workers, as well as arbitration and grievance procedures.

Youthful Offenders Decline

Admissions to California Youth Authority institutions declined in 1970 for an unprecedented fifth successive year, it was announced recently by Allen F. Breed, director of the CYA.

A total of 3,746 youthfull offenders were admitted to Youth Authority institutions for their first time in 1970, a decrease of 16.6 per cent from the 4,494 first admissions in 1969.

First admissions have been declining every year since 1965, when an all-time peak of 6,174 was registered. The total in 1966 dropped to 5,458 and to 4,994 in 1967.

Breed credited several Youth Authority treatment and subsidy programs for reversing the trend of increasing populations.

The probation subsidy program has been particularly effective in reducing commitments to state institutions. During the first four years of the program--July 1, 1966, to June 30, 1970-- expected commitments to state juvenile institutions and adult prisons were reduced by 10,797 and the counties earned $43 million in state subsidies.

Under the program, the state pays a subsidy to the counties for reducing their levels of commitments, with the money to be used for improvement and intensification of probation services.

The growth of treatment in the community also has tended to reduce commitments, Breed said. Research has shown that community treatment is frequently far more effective than institutionalization in rehabilitating youthful offenders.

These programs have reduced the pressure to build new institutions, which require and initial investment of millions of dollars and where the cost of maintaining a ward is comparatively high.

Additional statistics for 1970:

*As of December 31, there were 19,671 wards under commitment to the CYA--including those in institutions and on parole. This is 4.5 percent lower that the 20,599 wards under conmitment as of December 31, 1969.

*The number of parole violators returned to CYA institutions decreased from 3,535 to 2,825 between 1969 and 1970, representing a drop of 20.1 percent.

*Total institutional population at the end of 1970, including CYA wards in Department of Corrections institutions, was 5,580, down 5.6 percent from the 5,908 at the end of 1969.

*The total parole caseload as of December 31, 1970, was 13,936, a 3.6 percent decrease from the 14,463 on parole as of December 31, 1969.

*Length of stay in Youth Authority institutions increased from 9.9 to 10.5 months. For girls, the increase was from 8.6 to 8.7 months. Length of stay for wards in Department of Corrections institutions increased from 14.5 months in 1969 to 15.1 months in 1970.

The rate of first commitments to the Youth Authority was 90.7 per 100,000 youths in California in 1970. This represented a 33.7 drop from the average rate over the previous five years and an 18.8 percent decrease below the 1969 first commitment rate of 111.7 per 100,000.

Remember, that's this Saturday, February 20, at the office of The POST, 510 Broadway, from 9 a.m. until noon.

Tourist Increase

The Monterey Peninsula enjoyed an increased tourist business in 1970.

The transient room-tax collections are an accurate barometer of the number of visitors. The returns for the first 3/4 of 1970 from all of the city Treasurers on the Peninsula and the County Treasurer for the unicorporated areas on the Peninsula have been tabulated.

Sherrell Watson, excutive vice president of the Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce and Visitors and Convention Bureau announced that the 1970 results show a 16.4 percent increase through September.

Seaside Ripples

A.E. Barragan

If there is any argument in favor of local control as opposed to federal or state control in any area of the myriad of government agencies that presently exist, it is in the area of the control of the schools. By that I don't want to imply that we should go back to the "little red school house" type of thinking where every little hamlet had its own school and school board. We have found from experience in the last few years that consolidation of contiguous schools, even though they may be in separate municipalities, has resulted in better administration and, most importantly in savings to the taxpayers. It will continue to work that way as long as we can keep the administrations from appointing as many new assistant superintendents as there were before the consolidations.

I was working in the state capitol when the law was passed forcing the consolidation of certain school districts. The howling and crying from the school administrators, who were being eliminated, could be heard across the state. However, the law was passed and put into effect and to my knowledge it has made for more efficient and economical operation of the school districts, with one exception that I know of the Los Angeles School District. The complaint there is that it is too big and that local areas of the city have lost control of the schools in their respective areas. This complaint brings me back to the original premise I raised in my first sentence that local control is necessary for schools to the degree that it is efficient and sufficient.

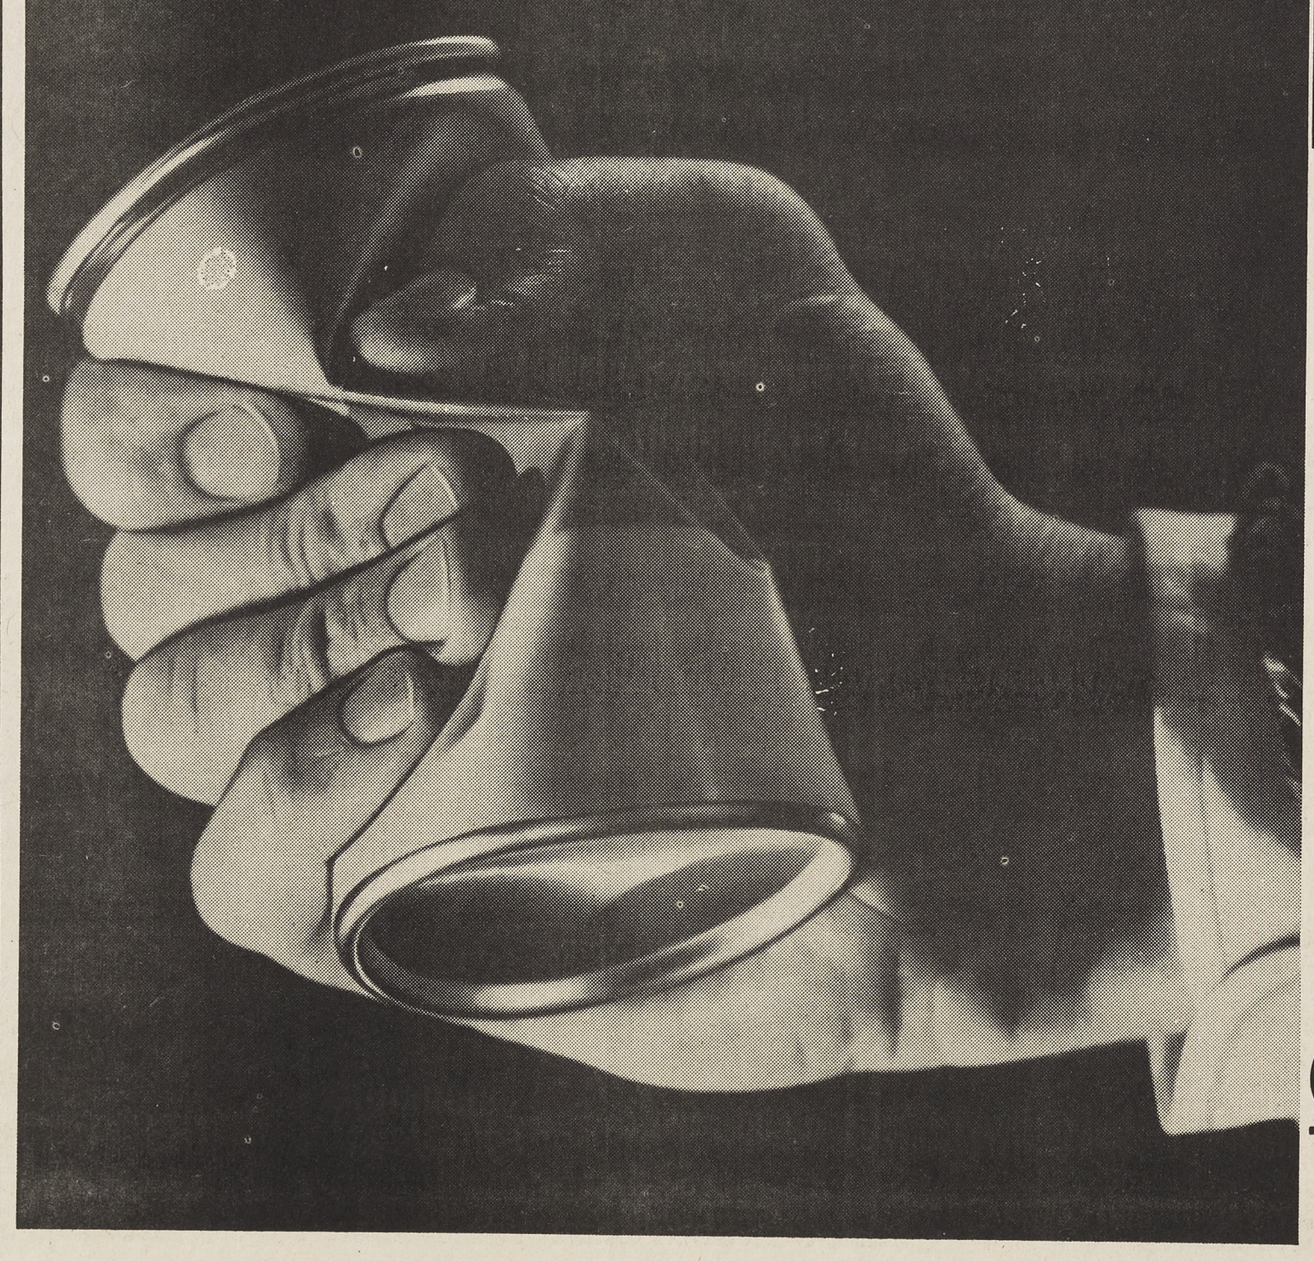
Aluminum cans, 10¢ a pound empty.


A fortune in empty aluminum cans is lying around parks, beaches, woods, along roads and in brown paper bags people keep under their sinks.
We'll pay you ten cents a pound for them so they can be recycled and made useful again.
So far the Can-Do program has "brought back" 14 million cans in the Bay Area. You can help us greatly increase that number.
Just bring your empties to a reclamation center listed below. We suggest a ten pound minimum, flattened.
Which should be easy. Aluminum cans are a cinch to squash.
How to identify an All-Aluminum can
1. An easy open aluminum top. Some cans have aluminum tops only. For recycling purposes, cans must be all aluminum.
2. Important . . . All-Aluminum cans have no side seam. If you don't see a seam, it's an aluminum can.
3. Will not hold a magnet.
4. Easy to crush (so you can carry more to the reclamation points).
5. Rounded bottom.

Your Child--A Vision Victim?

Many children with poor vision are wrongly labeled "lazy," "dull," or even "emotionally disturbed" by teachers and parents who are unaware that 20-20 on an eye test does NOT mean perfect vision.

A child may be above average in intelligence and have a 20-20 score, and yet a seeing problem may be causing him to fall behind in his studies, to be inattentive in class, to be poor in sports, or even to disturb the other students.

The usual eye test, traditional for many school generations in America, measures only one of the many different facets of good vision--the ability to distinguish letters of the alphabet at a distance of twenty feet. But what if the letters are at reading distance--fourteen to twenty inches instead of twenty feet? What if they are off to one side of the child's vision field rather than directly in the middle? What if the letters (or any other objects) are not standing still, but are in motion? Do the child's right and left eyes work together smoothly? How well does the child judge depths and distances?

Twenty percent of American youngsters entering school for the first time already have vision difficulties, according to the Better Vision Institute. Half of these problems can be spotted by parents and teachers before they show up in patterns of poor psychological adjustment or poor scholastic achievement, but too many children now struggle through into the sixth or seventh grade before their visual needs are recongized, and a large number of American children never get adequate visual diagnosis and treatment.

The screening of Columbia University freshmen over a four-year period revealed that 30 percent of entering students had some visual problem that might have jeopardized their scholastic success. Some of these students may have been able to see well enough to "get along," but probably at the cost of so much extra mental effort as to cause continual suffering from eyestrain, fatigue, general irritability, and restlessness.

A vision-handicapped youngster rarely complains about not seeing well--because he usually doesn't know that his vision is not normal. He tends to believe that everybody sees the way he does. Parents and teachers can sometimes spot eye trouble symptoms if they know what to look for.

An estimated 13 million school children--and millions of adults--now need vision help of one kind or another, and it is a tragic fact that many will never receive it. Is your child seeing efficiently? A child who can't make both eyes focus as a team is handicapped because he will never get a true in-depth picture of the world. A child who has uncorrected "tunnel vision" may never learn to read fast enough to succeed in school. A child with poor eye-hand coordination may need a prescribed course of eye-training exercises. Yet each of these children may have "20-20 vision" in the commonly accepted sense of the term. Wise parents can probably influence their children's future in no more forceful manner than by making sure that their eyes are in efficient working order.

Can and Can'ts of Exercise

If you really intend to get the most out of your exercise efforts, don't operate on the fantasy level many girls do. Know the facts about what exercise can and can't do.

CAN DO: Exercise tones muscles to a more compressed state so they form a natural girdle over the entire body, supporting flesh and fat.

CAN DO: Even if you are overweight, if your muscles are firm your body will appear to be trimmer than one of the same weight that is flabby.

CAN'T DO: Exercise can't make you lose a substantial number of pounds. Although it is theoretically possible to change your weight by exercise, it isn't really practical because it takes too much exercise over too long and steady a period.

How to Bathe the Baby

For many years you have been bathing without giving a thought to how you do it. Suddenly, if you are a new mother, you're confronted with a helpless infant. The thought of bathing him frightens you. You wonder how to begin.

Actually, the process of bathing baby is not any more difficult than other aspects of baby care--in other words, relatively easy, once you know how. All you need to bear in mind are a few simple facts.

Prior to baby's bath, you should place everything you'll need near to hand. This should include an apron to keep you dry, a soap dish, a mild baby soap, pieces of cotton, cotton swabs, baby shampoo, two soft towels, wash-cloth, baby lotion, cream or oil and baby powder.

You will also want to place a bath table in an area and at a height which allows you to handle the baby easily. Lay out the baby's clean clothing as well as the bath supplies within easy reach.

In the baby's early days, a sponge bath is all he'll need. Before starting, place a large fresh Turkish towel on the bath table. If the room is cool, wrap the baby in another towel. Place him on the bath table on his back.

Start the bath by gently wiping the eyelids with cotton dampened in soapless water. (Be careful not to allow soapy water to get in the baby's eyes). Use fresh cotton for each eyelid, wiping toward the outside of his face. With cotton swabs, clean his outer ears and the nostrils. Do not insert the swabs. Finally wash his face with freshly dampened cotton and pat dry.

Next begin the shampoo. With your right hand and arm, support the baby's head and body, holding the baby's hips and legs against your body. With your left hand, lather his scalp, then rinse it thoroughly and dry well. You should shampoo baby about twice a week. Now lightly soap the rest of his body. Then with a wet washcloth, rinse him well, because any soap left on may irritate his tender skin. The best way to wash off all the soap is to go over his body at least twice with the washcloth which you have rinsed each time in warm, clear water. Be sure to take extra care in the body creases.

Up to now you have not immersed your baby in water. Mother will be well advised to avoid bathing the baby in water until the navel has healed. Until then sponge baths should be sufficient. But now you are ready for the fun of a water bath. You prepare the pan or tub with three or four inches of warm water. Place a clean diaper on the bottom to keep the baby from slipping. Test the temperature of the water with your elbow. It should feel comfortable, neither hot nor cool. Lift the baby into the tub by supporting his head and shoulders with your left hand and his buttocks and left thigh in your right. Keep the thumb of your left hand on the baby's left shoulder and your fingers under his arm.

Holding the baby securely, let him splash about a few seconds. Use your right hand to soap his body with or without the washcloth. Spread, wash and rinse between the folds of his neck, arms, legs and genital area. Now turn the baby on his stomach. With your left forearm under his chest, grip his shoulder with your left hand. With your right hand, soap his back and wash between the buttocks. Rinse him off and, still holding his left shoulder, lift him out using your right hand to support his thighs. Lay baby on a clean towel and pat him dry with a second towel.

If you use baby powder, it should be dusted on your hand first, then rubbed gently on his skin. If the baby's skin is dry, use a baby lotion. You will find the lotion is also helpful for mild diaper rash.

Above all, remember never, never leave baby alone in his bath.

two posts on the Monterey Peninsula Unified School Board from the Seaside-Monterey trustee area. Sam Brown of Seaside is not seeking re-election, while board president Gervaise Davis from Monterey is up for re-election. There will also be a vacancy from the Marina Trustee area since Ray Isakson says he will not seek re-election. So far there has been only one filing for the Seaside area trustee position. That was by a Seaside doctor who lives in Monterey, Dr. Henry Rock.

In the Marina Trustee area there also has been only one filing. That was by Thomas Knauf, pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church. Both Rock and Knauf were unsuccessful candidates in the 1969 election. It would seem that there should be more interest from the local communities so that there would be more than one candidate ready to run in each of the respective districts of Seaside and Marina. The voters, parents and school employees are entitled to a greater choice. Here is an opportunity for all of those who have ideas about how the schools should be run to get their feet wet in an election bid. Even though they may not win the first time out, at least the public will be exposed to some of their ideas and who knows, maybe they will get elected.

While on the subject of schools, I am going to keep a close eye on the state capitol, the Washington administration and congress. They are working on some radical changes in school tax financing. The State Board of Education has a report calling for a statewide school tax. The Federal Government is proposing revenue sharing, which at this point hasn't received very wide acceptance in Washington. The congressmen have the same fears on this sharing plan that I do. They (and I) want to know what present programs will be cut out to give us the sharing. Will it just be a shuffle of paper with the local communities coming up on the short end?

Revenue sharing sounds great until you examine it closely. We are already receiving a good deal of sharing from the federal government in the area of schools in this district. We have to be careful to protect that source of revenue in any future revenue sharing plan. Our schools are important to all of us, not just those who have children going to them. The entire future of our country is in the hands of those children presently in our schools. We should all lend a hand to provide the best that we can and to see to it that they get the education that they need.

And that means participating in school board elections and keeping your congressman and legislator informed on your views on education.

goals of the Affirmative Action committee, said,

"The term affirmative action can best be understood in relationship with two other words: "equal employment". Equal employment is a condition, and affirmative action is the means by which the condition is achieved.

"Affirmative Action thus includes all the various methods through which equal employment opportunity for minority group citizens is truly made a reality. Underlying the term is a tacit recognition that positive action is presently required both to insure against overt discrimination in employment and to remedy the effects of past practices. Statutes and orders requiring affirmative action recognized that there is nothing basically inferior about any race or ethnic group. They accept the fact that the problems being experienced by minority groups today are largely attributable to the discrimination which has been practiced by the white community for many years. That discrimination has been, and is, very positive. If progress is now to be made for minority groups, the proposition must be accepted that the policies to remove inequalities cannot be merely passive. Nothing less than affirmative action must be taken."

The Federal Office on Contract Compliance has set a deadline of April 8, for the conclusion of a negotiated contract between the Affirmative Action group and the building trades representatives.

Who Cares

By Mel Vercoe

I attended an interesting panel discussion a few evenings ago. The topic, "What is America's Wisest Course In the Middle East?", was, in a way, a new approach to an ancient subject.

We covered a lot of ground, but all the way through the discussion the matter of the partition of Palestine was somewhere in the forefront, while the really big issues, such as the fact that western powers have been exploiting the whole area for a couple hundred years, and that the big powers plainly don't give a damn about the people or human rights, but are only interested in control of the Middle East because of its oil and its strategic importance in the idiotic but profitable struggle between communism and the so-called democracies, thes issues seemed important to only one of the three panelists.

Anyway, as I see it, America has some choices. (1) We could tear the maps of the Middle East. (2) We could nuclear bomb it off the face of the earth all of it, thus eradicating the problem, except that we would then have to argue with Russia about the oil. (3) We could continue as we have, supplying both the Arabs and the Israelis with arms, a very lucrative policy carried on under the banner of maintaining an arms balance, and hope that neither serious war nor serious peace breaks out to spoil a good thing. (4) We could talk to Russia about the whole thing, and we might both arrive at the same conclusion that eventyally the Middle East nuclear bomb barrel might explode into a world-wide nuclear war, which could prove uncomfortable even in the Pentagon bomb shelter after a few weeks.

In the event agreement was reached on No.4 we, Russia and the U.S., have the capability of simply disarming completely the whole Middle East, from Pakistan to Gibraltar, dividing up the oil, cutting France and Britain out of the picture, and hoping that the extra oil profits could make up in part for lost arms sales.

Or, if the arms business is better than the oil business, we could arm both the Arabs and the Israelis, then talk them into going into the oil business together to cut out western profits, after which they would join forces to kick both us and the Russian, along whit France and Britain, out of the Middle East for all time. Such a happening would be a step forward if it didn't cost too much, because we could still make some money on arms sales, while the Russians would no longer be able to expand rapidly in the area by pitting the Arabs against the Israelis.

The Israelis, of course make up Russia's most valuable weapon. Without Israel they would have nothing of value to polarize Arab energies, and the Arabs, who are even less desirous of having communism enterenched in the Middle East than we are, would probably rather fight Russians than Jews, recongnizing Israel's presence, however obnoxious to them, as being preferable to a complete Russian takeover.

And even if you don't happen to care about the Middle East, you may expect an increase in the price of gasoline soon, because the oil producing countries are now asking for more money per barrel of oil.

MPVS Assists Local Groups

At the recent meeting of the Monterey Peninsula Volunteer Services, held on February 5th at the USO in Monetery, requests from a number of local agancies were acted upon favorably by the membership, upon recommendation of the Finance Committe.

The first two weeks in March at the Thrift Shop in Seaside will be set aside for the benefit of the Children's Home Society and the net proceeds from the Shop for the period will be given to them.

A gift of $400 was voted to the Carmel Unified School District to assist in the operation of the Drug Abuse Program in which a group of girls specially trained for this work will be on duty each day from 10 a. m. to 4:30 p.m. to answer inquiries and offer help.

Beacon House was given the sum of #389.15 for the purchase of electrical equipment they requested.

The Carmel Chapter of the American Field Service was granted $200 to further their student exchange program.

The sum of $250 was granted to the Tri-County Science Fair, to be held in March, to assist the winner and the runner-up to attend the National Science Fair held in the year in Kansas City.

A request from the Student Employment Service for $300 to defray expenses for printing the necessary forms was granted.

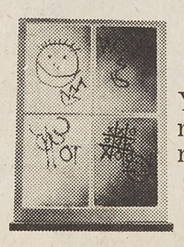
As the temperature falls, your PG&E bill rises.

Here's why:

It gets darker earlier and that means more lighting.

You cook more hot meals on cold days.

You stay inside more and use more heat.



Your TV and stereo get more use.

It all adds up to bigger PG&E bills during winter months.

Adult Art Class Opens

The Pacific Grove Adult School is offering a course in Drawing and Painting again this semester on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7:30 to 3 in Rm. 1-1, Pacific Grove High School.

Intermediate and advanced students in pencil, pen & ink pastel drawings and oil painting and watercolor are especially welcomed, although beginners are accepted, according to Mr. C. Y. Lee, instructor and chairman of the Seaside Art Commission.

For further information please call the Adult School Office at 373-4951 or call Mr. Lee at 394-2965.

Art Center Open House Is Success

Over 300 members, artists and guests attended an open house at the Pacific Grove Art Center February 5,.

Featured were a one-man show in the main gallery by Harold Landaker, an exhibit of oils and graphics by Tom Webb in gallery 2 and a new juried show by members of the Pacific Grove Art Association. These works will be on display throughout February.

Visitors were welcomed by Mr. Donald Ostergard and Mrs. Phyliss Carminati, co-chairmen of the 1971 Membership Drive and Mr. Borell Kirschen, new President of the Center. Members of the Women's Guild served refreshments throughout the evening and acted as hostesses to the many visitors at the Center.

More than 40 penindula residents became members of the Center during the evening and great enthusiasm was shown for its future plans. Two of the new members received art works donated by Gene Falk, who has a studio at the Center. Mr. Falk has developed a unique art media he calls palettography, a combination of photography and painting.

Seaside resident Tom Webb also has a studio at the Art Center. He received first prize in graphics at last years Monterey County Fair. The prize drawing, "Mother and Child," will be one of the works featured at his exhibit.

Webb is a member of the Seaside Art Commission, on the board of directors of the Art Center and a member of the Pacific Grove Art Association. He is also currently teaching one of the junior art classes at the Center.

Space Seminar Applications Now Available

Competition is now open to Explorers in this area for an all-expense-paid trip this summer to NASA's Kennedy Space Center in Florida to attend a unique Space Seminar.

Sponsored by Pepsi-Cola Co., NASA and the Exploring Division, Boy Scouts of America, the Space Seminar is for young men entering their junior or senior years in high school and who are currently registered members of an Explorer Post.

Application may be obtained from the Monterey Bay Area Council, Boy Scouts of America, P. O. Box 1967 in Salinas, California. Call 422-5338.

The weeklong Space Seminar, July 11-17, is a great opportunity for one winning Explorer from each state to get a comprehensive view of America's space program from astronauts, scientists, engineers, and other NASA experts, according to Louis Schmidt, Council Explorer Chairman.

This is the second year that Pepsi-Cola Co. and Exploring have sponsored a Space Seminar at the Kennedy Space Center.

Judging will be done locally and nationally by volunteer Explorer leaders.

Student Honored

A total of 15 cadets enrolled in the ROCT program at the University of California, Davis, were recently awarded the "Leadership Laboratory Achievement Award."

Richard Inokuchi, a junior pre-med student, from Seaside was among those honored.

"MOST POPULAR AMERICAN"

By: Karin E. Alston

The United Press recently reported on a nation wide poll of high school students which revealed their choice for "Most Popular American". Mrs. Dennis, Mrs. Wilson and Mr. Miller of Seaside High School, decided to take the same survey in their Sophomore English classes to compare the results with the national poll. The following is the result of both polls:

	National Poll	Local Poll
1	President Richard Nixon	1. Parent
2	Parent	2. Bob Hope
3	Bob Hope	3 Raquel Welch
4.	Neil Armstrong	4. No Choice
5.	Senator Edward Kennedy	5. President Richard Nixon
6.	Teachers	6. Vice President Agnew
7.	No choice	7. Angela Davis TIED George Wallace
8.	Billy Graham	8. Angela Davis TIED George Wallace
9.	Vice President Spiro Agnew	9. Senator Edward Kennedy
10.	Bill Cosby	10. Teachers

TEACHER'S TENURE

by Albert Bunuan

In the California educational system, teachers who perform "satisfactorally" during a three year trial period are granted teacher tenure. This policy is designed to protect a job that has taken a lot of time and effort to obtain. Tenure insures a legal hearing presenting both sides to a local school board for a teacher "on the line".

But as there are advantages of tenure, there are just as many drawbacks. For instance, poor teachers who have been successful in fooling the administration for three years can keep on preaching their stagnant gospel until retirement. Diplomatic administrators, who would rather avoid the embarrassment of a hearing, let this happen. This is an academic farce!

Governor Reagan wants to abolish tenure. His interests lie, however, more in weeding out Angela Davis-type militants from faculties than in weeding out poor teachers. Let it be known that the students demand the best educators militant philosophies or not.

Maybe a student-faculty reviewing board can be formed. Their function would be to give the faculty explicit but fair reviews on what they've been doing lately to further our education.

Then you're eligible for the services of a volunteer "friendly visitor," one of a number of persons soon to be trained by the Alliance on Aging and Monterey Peninsula College.

"Friendly visitors," according to Mrs. Carl Hering of the recently formed Alliance, will be assigned to visit two "shut-ins" at least twice a month, telephone them frequently and take them on occasional short pleasure trips.

Men, women or couples who would like to make use of this service, as well as persons acquainted with shut-ins who they think might enjoy being "visited," are urged to call Mrs. John Clark, 624-7872, or the Alliance on Aging office at MPC (375-9821) between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Trucking Firms Unfair To Undereducated

Hiring standards in the trucking industry effectively exclude nearly all undereducated minority group members from employment as truck terminal dock workers, according to a recent report prepared for the Labor Department.

The report, "Tri-Faith Trucking Terminal Employment Project," is based on an 18-month Manpower Administration experimental and demonstration training project for 138 men.

It was conducted by the Chicago Conference on Religion and Race, a non-profit community action organization, in cooperation with Associated Truck Lines, Inc., one of the nation's largest interstate carriers.

One hundred trucking firms participated in the survey.

The report points out that many companies hire only high school graduates as dock workers. Other companies merely give preference to high school graduates and some companies administer standard verbal personnel tests to help identify applicants who will perform well on the job.

The report concluded that the trucking industry's educational and testing prerequisites are clearly unrealistic because the work is relatively low-skilled and many potential employees lack formal education and the verbal skills needed to pass the test.

Recommendations of the report stated that improved techniques for recruitment and training of workers lacking formal education would help the trucking industry solve the twin problems of manpower shortage and high employee turnover.

Beauty of Point Lobos In New Book

Publication of a new book about Point Lobos Reserve was announced by William Penn Mott, Jr. at a meeting of the State Park Commission February 11 at Oroville.

The 80 page, 8 1/2 x 11 inch book contains more than 70 photos, including some by Ansel Adams, Edward Weston and Phillip Hyde.

Each of the eleven chapters is written by experts in natural science, history, landscape architecture and park administration.

"This book is designed to help visitors see new aspects of the Reserve's great natural beauty, "Mott said," and beyond that to help them understant the on-going processes behind that beauty.

"Experts believe, for instance, that the beautiful cypress groves at Point Lobos are part of a vanishing forest community that was once wide-spread in North America," Mott said. "Those who are aware of this evolutionary process are able to see more than pretty, green trees. They are witness to the dynamic spectacle of an embattled cypress species clinging to life at the edge of the continent. And this is only one of the many stories that lie behind the scenery at Point Lobos."

Publication of the book was made possible by a grant from the Carnegie Institution of Washington D. C. through the Save-the Redwoods League. It is one of a series of similarly self - supporting publications being produced by the Park Department for units of the State Park System where in - depth interpretation is of particular importance.

The book will be sold for $1.90 (plus 10 cents California sales tax) at Point Lobos State Reserve and other units of the State Park System. Mail orders may be made by sending a check or money order for $ 2 to the Department of Parks and Recreation, P. O. Box 2390, Sacramento, California 95811.

Learn About Local Peace

Maintaining neighborhood peace has a religious dimension and obligation. This is brought out in the Lesson-Sermon on "Mind" to be read at Christian Science church services Sunday on the Monterey Peninsula. Services begin at 11 a.m.

One of the passages to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy reads;

"When we realize that there is one Mind, the divine law of loving our neighbor as ourselves is unfolded; whereas a belief in many ruling minds hinders man's normal drift towards the one Mind, one God, and leads human thought into opposite channels where selfishness reigns."

OBITUARIES

One of Monterey County's leaders in education died recently at Community Hospital after a long illness. Dr. Verna White, who served as Director of Education for Monterey County Schools from 1956 to 1962, was known as a foremost expert in evalution and test development.

Dr. White taught for more than 15 yers in elementary and secondary schools, served as a Research Assistant in the United States Armed Forces Institute and was on the professional staff of Syracuse University for 11 years.

After leaving the Monterey County Schools office, she joined CTB/McGraw - Hill (formerly California Test Bureau) and was primarily responsible for the development of theat company's first new testing instrument under the McGraw- Hill label the Comprehensive Tests of Basic Skills.

This test, which has been adopted by the State of California and other cities and states throughout he nation, has been called one of the most unique and innovative measurement tools to be created.

In 1970, Dr. White was awarded Special Recognition for Outstanding Performance by the McGraw - Hill Book Company and received a $1,000 honorarium for her work in this area. She is listed in Leaders in Education.
